

Quarterly Population Report

First Quarter 2014

Still growing...!¹

Alberta was the destination of choice for about 21,000 people from other locales in the first three months of 2014, maintaining its position as provincial growth leader for the thirteenth consecutive quarter. As of April 1, 2014, the province's population was an estimated 4,111,509. The first quarter's growth rate (0.71%) was about three times the national average (0.23%). Although still very high, Alberta's growth has moderated slightly from the fourth quarter last year. Alberta added 28,938 new residents in the first three months of 2014, by far the largest population gain of any jurisdiction and about 7000 more than Ontario's gain over the same period. On average, every single day of the first three months of 2014, Alberta added 320 new residents.

Year-over-year, Alberta's population growth of 3.2%² led the provinces. The province's year-over-year growth rates have been above 3% for the last six consecutive quarters. Year-over-year, only Alberta and its neighbours on both sides grew faster than the national average of 1.1%; Saskatchewan with a rate of 1.9% and British Columbia with 1.2%.

Migration

Migration continues to boost Alberta's population, accounting for three-quarters of the growth in the first quarter. The province welcomed 21,316 net migrants from other parts of Canada and the world, representing the second highest first quarter gain on record.

Interprovincial migration

At 9,581, Alberta had by far the strongest net inflow of interprovincial migrants in the country, although it was the lower than the first quarter levels of the last two years. Despite this moderating trend, interprovincial migration accounted for about a third of the population growth in the first quarter. With the exception of Saskatchewan and British Columbia, all other provinces experienced net outflows over the quarter. The largest outflows were experienced by Ontario (-4,654), Quebec (-2,558) and Manitoba (-1,417). The vast majority of Alberta's net migrants came from Ontario (4,210), with substantial numbers also from Newfoundland and Labrador (1,071) and Nova Scotia (957).

Net International Migration

Alberta attracted 16.1% of all immigrant landings in Canada in the first quarter, the highest share ever recorded. In addition to the share, there is also strength in the absolute number of immigrants Alberta is attracting. The first quarter of 2014 saw 10,327 immigrants choose Alberta as their province of landing, the highest first quarter number on record. Alberta gained 2,644 non-permanent residents (NPR)³ in the first three months of the year, less than half the number from the first quarter last year. All in all, net international migration contributed 11,735 new Albertans, the second strongest first quarter showing on record.

Natural increase

During the first quarter of 2014, Alberta posted a natural increase of 7,622, the result of 13,809 births and 6,187 deaths. The provincial population grew by 0.19% (of Alberta's 0.71% growth) in the first quarter due to natural increase alone.
